This is about the Creation of the angelic realm as seen from a different point of view.

But…before the story, I want to let viewers know that there is a truth far greater than either Gods or Satan's stories put together…and that truth, is about Jesus and the ultimate sacrifice that he made! Jesus Christ was a real entity. He was both the Son of God as well as the Son of Man. He was born into poverty, and his mother's name was Mary, and her husband was named Joseph. Jesus lived, on this Earth, sin free, for 33 years. During this time, he performed miracles (completed tasks that have no rational explanation as to how they happened; considered to be of the supernatural by some). He went from place to place teaching and healing. He was nailed to a wooden cross, and crucified in front of the people, one of which was his own mother, Mary; in order to shed his blood so that Heaven would be made available to all those who believed in him and the sacrifice that he chose to make. No matter what truths you decide to take away from this video…this is the most important one of them all!

Second, a few side notes…

What is an angel made of…

Have you ever wondered what makes up an angel? I have to admit that before this past year, I really had no idea what an angel was made up of. Angels are made up of mostly will. Theres a formula that they follow in order to hold their form as well as complete the tasks that they have been assigned. Formula = Focused Intentions (which are weighted goals)…now add this to will (determination) and after these two factors have been added together, the resulting sum gets multiplied by their force (which is their inner light (elemental…an example is fire).

*When angels were first created, they were neither male nor female. God created them to be immortal beings, and it wasn't necessary for them to reproduce themselves…so they lacked any reproductive organs (the deciding factor which denotes whether an individual is either male or female). But, that's not to say that an angel isn't capable of feeling the same kind of pleasure that we humans experience during sexual intercourse. In the beginning, contact between two angels was fleeting…quick pecks on the cheeks or brief hugs. But, over time, some of the angels learned that prolonging their contact with one another (rubbing their bodies together… which caused friction (heat) to build up between them) would allow them to experience deeper, more intense feelings of pleasure. Soon thereafter, not only were some of the angels engaging in these acts, but they also spent much of their time thinking about (desiring) the pleasure that they felt when performing these acts; which means, they were spending less time worshiping (singing praises to) God. And, of course, God noticed the decrease of praises over time, and he made a decree that the angels could no longer engage in these unholy practices...and he told them that they should feel shame for participating in these acts! Now…

The Truth About The Light

God had been wandering for a while. Finally, he found what he was looking for. A vast dark void. Nothing but blackness. This is where I will start. God then focused his intentions and using his will as well as some of the energy that he was made of...he scattered the energy out into the void, as he willed his intentions to come forth. He watched as individual shapes began to form. Light shone from within each of these shapes. Soon, there was a multitude of these beings (which he called angels). Each angel was given a name, a rank, a task (considered as their service unto God) that the angel was specifically created for...as well as every angel was given freewill (the ability to choose one's own path in life). God looked over all the activity that was springing up; there was light as far as the eye could see. Just then, a chorus of beautiful voices began to sing; they were singing about how great God is and how wonderful his works are. God walked over to the angels who had been given the task of singing his praises nonstop, and he gathered up one of the praises that had been generated by the angels, and he ingested it. Feelings of ecstasy immediately flowed through him. God smiled, pleased with all that he saw, and he then decided that this place was to be called Heaven.

Now...after some time had passed, God found himself, walking the same path he did every day, that took him to the angels that sang his praises non stop. The mansion where he lived was a distance away from these angels (the angels were positioned almost in the center of Heaven, that way they had the best view of all of God's good works, thus giving them the motivation to sing for God; they did after all have free will and the choice as to whether or not to sing). So, everyday God had to make this trip to these angels so he could collect the praises that they had generated. Now, in the beginning, God made this trip willingly and in good spirits, but lately he found himself growing more and more tired of this journey. One of the main reasons, was because every day, he'd have to stop and make small talk with the same angels. Every day it was the same boring conversation, over and over again. It had gotten to the point where he absolutely dreaded the task of collecting the praises. And on this particular day, he spent the majority of the walk, trying to figure out what he could do to fix this situation. Then it came to him...he'd just create another angel! One that would live with him in the mansion! And this angel could make the daily walk to collect the praises! He finally reached the angels, and excitedly, he gathered up the praises, and then he started on the journey back to his house. As he made his way back home, other ideas began to come to him. One of them was that he could make this angel absolutely breathtakingly beautiful! Unlike the other plain angels, this one he would never find himself having to avert his gaze from. Then, another idea; he could craft this angel to have the most beautiful singing voice! This angel could teach the other angels how to use their voices to praise him properly! As God neared the mansion, two more thoughts came to mind. Unlike the other angels who lacked the intelligence to hold any sort of conversation that might stimulate him, he'd create this angel with the knowledge, so that he'd be able to converse with God on his level; perhaps he'd even be capable of debating with God! The last thing God decided he'd give this angel was the ability to craft fantastic stories. Tales that would keep God enthralled and guessing til the very end. God opened the door to his home, and he made his way through til he reached the back door. He put the praises he had collected down and then walked out into the back courtyard. He focused his intentions, and using more of himself than he had used in creating all the other angels, he began to will this magnificent creature into being.

God watched in awe as the shape before him began to morph into one of an angel. Finally, the angel before him, opened his beautiful blue eyes. The angel looked at God and then he spoke in a voice that could cause goose bumps to form, 'Are you my creator? Are you my God?' With tears of joy in his eyes, God answered that yes..yes I am the one who has given you life. Then God watched as the angel before him went to his knees and bowed his head. The angel then thanked God for his life. God offered his hand to the angel, and the angel took it and God helped him back to his feet. God, then gazed at the angel and was stunned by the absolute beauty of his features.

God was certain that there was nothing that compared to the work of art that was this angels face. God then took both of his hands and placed them on the angels shoulders, and he looked into the angels eyes and he said, 'Your name is Lucifer, which means shining brightly.' Then God put his arm around the angels shoulders and said, 'Come Lucifer, let me show you around the mansion where you will live with me.' Then as God guided Lucifer through the backdoor, he began to tell him all about the tasks that he had created him specifically for.

Once inside, God showed Lucifer around the mansion, and then he took Lucifer around heaven, introducing him to the other angels. The other angels welcomed him to the family with open arms. God then informed Lucifer that he was going to be the one to instruct all the other angels on how to use their voices so that they could properly offer up praise to God. God watched as Lucifer went down to his knees, and he began to give thanks to God for creating him, and for giving him the opportunity to teach and make friends with the other angels. God put his hand on Lucifer’s shoulder, and he held out his other hand so that he could help Lucifer up. Once Lucifer was back on his feet, God put his arm around the angel’s shoulders and they began to make their way back home.

From this point on, Lucifer remained in God's mansion, doing everything he was told to do. Every day he made the long journey to collect the praises. He also worked with all the other angels making their voices better as well as putting together a choir, where Lucifer’ss beautiful melodic voice led the others in song that worshipped God and his good works like it had never done before. Lucifer also spent a good amount of time walking with God in the beautiful manicured gardens that surrounded Heaven. Lucifer and God would find a place, usually beneath the shade of a big tree, sometimes by a stream; and here, God would lean back against the tree, his eyes closed as he listened to Lucifer fashion stories that were both fantastic and awe inspiring. And then on their way back to the mansion, God would pick a topic, and he and Lucifer would begin to debate the different sides, each one trying to prove their individual point of views as the proper way to look at said issue. God absolutely loved and looked forward to these times that he and Lucifer spent together. It was definitely the time when Heaven lived up to its name.

Now, the other angels had come to love and respect Lucifer. He was the angel who spent the most time with God, as well as he had made a name for himself in that he had great knowledge. Many angels would come to him with questions or needing advice, and the answers he gave always turned out to be the right ones. All the angels looked upon Lucifer as one of the nicest and wisest angels ever created.

One day, while the angels were at choir practice, Lucifer happened to be sharing a hymnal with another angel named Azazel, the lead blacksmith in Heaven. And while they sang, Lucifer happened to turn his head, and he saw Azazel looking at him. Lucifer smiled and before he knew what was happening, Azazel had leaned in and kissed him on his lips. Lucifer felt both shock and pleasure run through his body. After that day, Azazel and Lucifer began to spend more time together...alone. They would sneak kisses during these private intimate moments. One time, they even met inside the large brass bell that was used to call all the angels to worship.

Soon thereafter, God pulled Lucifer aside and told him that he knew what he and Azazel had been doing and that it was wrong...'unholy', God told Lucifer that he should feel ashamed of his behavior. God then told Lucifer that he believed that he and Azazel should stop spending so much time together. Well, Lucifer did as he was told, and Azazel immediately noticed the change in him. He asked Lucifer why they weren't spending as much time together and when they did spend time together, they weren't as physical as before. Lucifer explained that God had pulled him aside and told him that he should feel shame for doing the unholy things they'd been doing and that he wanted them to spend less time together. Well,, Azazel of course wasn't happy about this, and when he and Lucifer were together he began to try and drove a wedge between Lucifer and God. One day, Azazel asked Lucifer if he had ever tried one of the praises that he collected for God. Lucifer immediately said no that they were not his, that they belonged to God. Azazel commented that if it was him, he probably wouldn't be able to help himself and he'd have to try at least one just to see what the big deal was. His words stayed with Lucifer and the next time that Lucifer went out to collect the praises, he held one back. Later on, when he met up with Azazel, he showed the praise to him and they both partook of it. They immediately felt immense feelings of intense pleasure wash over them. But what they couldn't see happening was what else was taking place in Lucifer’s body. What nobody knew at this point, was that when God had created Lucifer, he had done so with selfish intent (all the traits he wanted Lucifer to have were strictly for his pleasure alone...beauty that he would never tired of looking at, a voice that could lead the other angels when singing his praises, enough knowledge so that he could engage in discussions on God's level, the ability to create fantastic stories that would hold God's attention til the end, and lastly, he created Lucifer so that he wouldn't have to make the walk to collect the praises)...all were self serving. As well, when God created Lucifer, he had thoughts that would have been deemed as wrongful pride...he couldn't wait to show off his creation and he couldn't wait to see how much better this angel was going to be in comparison to the other angels he had created. And God, allowing his excitement to cloud his judgement, created Lucifer with these intentions in mind, and thus, these traits were instilled deep w/in Lucifer’s makeup. And they had remained hidden until Lucifer had ingested that little bit of praise. And just like a human who has a faulty gene coded w/in their DNA, that gets turned on when a certain chemical trigger takes place...this is what happened to Lucifer. And right after he and Azazel shared the praise, Lucifer began to change. First, he began to question whether God was really deserving of all the praise and worship that he was given. He began to feel like he deserved some praise for all that he did for God and for the other angels. Second, he began spending more time with Azazel and he went back to sharing intimate moments with Azazel. And again, God pulled him aside and told him that he knew what they had been doing, and that it was wrong. But, this time, Lucifer began to question God about what was so wrong with he and another angel sharing pleasurable moments together. God answered that the acts had been deemed unholy and that he and Azazel should be spending that time worshipping Him. After this confrontation, Lucifer quit the choir and stopped praising God altogether. This was just another incident that caused the rift between God and Lucifer to grow bigger.

Not long after this, God called all the angels together for a meeting. He began to tell them about a new project that he had been working on. God explained that he was creating planets, and stars, and moons. He also told the angels that he was going to create a new being…one made in his own image. These beings were to be called humans, and the first one was to be named Adam. God then told all the angels to kneel down to this first human. Immediately, all, but one, of the angels went down to their knees. God looked out at all the angels who were bowing in reverence, their faces to the floor, and he saw that one angel had refused to kneel. It was Lucifer. God asked Lucifer why he wasn’t kneeling and Lucifer, with an incredulous look on his face, answered that he wasn’t going to bow to a being that he considered to be lower than himself…why, these beings weren’t even going to have any knowledge that wouldn’t have to be learned first! God explained that they were made in his image and that he should bow because God had told him to. Lucifer flat out refused to bow down and he promptly left the meeting. After this display of disobedience by Lucifer,, things got even more tense between he and God. Lucifer began to openly speak against God by saying that he believed God was wrong to ask them to bow down to beings that didn't even have the knowledge as to where they came from. He began telling the other angels that he believed that he could be a better ruler than God…his kingdom would allow angels to express their love for one another. In his kingdom no one would have to bow before beings that weren't worthy of worship. He even went as far as to tell the other angels that one day, he'd have a throne that was high above God's throne! His throne would be as high as the stars themselves!

Now, when God saw how Lucifer had begun to act, he began to go through all the possibilities as to why he was acting this way. And he soon realized that he had made a mistake while creating Lucifer. His intentions had not been pure. Instead, he had created Lucifer with intentions that were of a selfish (self-serving) nature. Beauty, that far surpassed anything he had created before this, a voice that could lead the other angels while singing his praises, more knowledge than any other angel, enough so that he could discuss / debate issues with God on his level, as well as he had given Lucifer the ability to craft wondrous tales (which is just another way of saying that he had given Lucifer the ability to tell lies that could convince anyone that he was speaking the truth!. God bowed his head as he remembered the last thing he had created Lucifer for…and that was because he had grown tired of making the walk to gather up the praises. He began to recall the way he had felt as he had created Lucifer. In his mind, he was already boasting to the other angels about how wonderful this new angel he had created was. If any angel had acted this way, he would have immediately deemed these actions as wrongful pride. This is when God understood that he had made mistakes that he couldn’t take back. And he certainly couldn’t tell Lucifer about the mistakes that he had made! He would be handing Lucifer the information necessary to turn the other angels against him; the fact that he was an imperfect God, who had made mistakes when creating him. He felt a deep dread settle over him as he realized that this would cause the angels to stop praising him! No, he decided right then and there, that the best thing to do was to have Lucifer thrown out of Heaven. And he knew just how that could be done. He knew that Lucifer had stolen a praise and had tried it. This was more than likely the catalyst for the corruption (selfishness and pride) that he, himself, had instilled in Lucifer, had finally begun to present itself! He would call all the angels to another meeting. Where, he, God, would begin to question Lucifer about stealing the praise. He knew that Lucifer would no doubt lie about doing this. And while all the other angels looked on in shock, he (God) would began enumerating all of the ways that Lucifer had done that proved he had turned against God. The angels wouldn't question him when he suggested that Lucifer needed to be cast out of Heaven.

So, the next day, God gathered all the angels together, and he began accusing Lucifer of stealing a praise. And just as he expected, Lucifer lied about it. God watched as the angels turned to look at Lucifer; the majority of them wore shocked looks, but a few began to make disparaging remarks as condescending looks settled upon their faces. God continued on; he deemed Lucifer a thief, a liar, a murderer, and he deemed his acts as sins. He told Lucifer that he had to leave Heaven, and that any other angels who chose to fall with him would fall forever and they would never be allowed back into Heaven. This announcement immediately caused the two opposing sides to begin fighting one another. Eventually, Lucifer and the other angels who had taken his side, were defeated and cast out of Heaven. And down to earth they fell.

Just a small side note…when Jesus Christ was crucified and he died, he became immediately aware of this reality…the truth of everything that had taken place since God had set about creating the angelic realm:

*God had created not for Love, but to be worshipped as well as for the praises generated from being worshipped.

*God created Lucifer strictly for his own pleasure…as well as he had botched the job of creating him to be pure, by allowing his intentions and thoughts (which are a major part of the driving agents during the process of creation) to reflect the selfishness and pride that drove the process of creation that particular day.

*God had deemed the acts that brought about natural feelings of pleasure and love that two beings shared between themselves as ‘unholy’ and that ‘shame’ is what they should actually be feeling. When, in reality, what God was really upset with was the lack of attention (worship) that he was being given.

*God sees nothing wrong with taking in external elements (not naturally made by his body, but by other beings worshipping him) to achieve physical pleasure for himself, but condemns two individuals who want to engage in physical pleasure with one another, calling them fornicators, sinners, and that they should feel shame for what they are doing.

*God had realized the mistakes he had made during Lucifer’s creation process, and instead of going to him, and explaining what had happened and that he would try to help Lucifer deal with this emotional baggage that was there only because he had put it there…no, instead he chose to deem Lucifer evil and have him thrown out of Heaven, so that Lucifer, who really didn’t understand what was going on within himself, wouldn’t have time to figure it out, and then blame God.

*Lucifer was not the creator of sin and death, nor did he bring suffering into the world. God is actually the creator of these things…as well as God cracked the firmament in Heaven on purpose, so that everyone would believe that it was Lucifer’s actions that caused it.

*God has stated that there is no sadness, no suffering allowed in Heaven… therefore, everyone who goes to Heaven has their tears wiped and their memories erased…you won’t remember your loved ones…until they join you in Heaven. Remember, its not about the life that you’ve lived here on Earth; its not about the people you spent time making memories with…it’s strictly about the relationship you had with Jesus.

*God is the author of Revelation, the last book of the bible that speaks of death, destruction, war, exile, fire, judgements and severe eternal punishments for those that have defied God (in reality God just wants them suffering so much so that they can’t possibly come up with a way to get back at him, nor could they plan escape, and this way, he doesn’t have to constantly check up on the residents of Hell.

I truly believe that Jesus and God are two separate entities…hence, when Jesus cried out to his Father, while he took his last breath, dying on the cross, ‘Father, why have you forsaken me?’…he did so because he had realized all the things that his Father had done: the suffering that he had allowed to continue, just so he could continue to receive the one thing that drove all of Creation…the praises that came from being worshipped.
